THE BEAVER ARGUS.

Vol. 53—No. 25. Beaver, Pa., Wednesday, June 28, 1871. Established 1818.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Advertisements are inserted at the rate of $1.00 per square for first insertion, and for each subsequent insertion 50 cents. A liberal discount made on yearly advertisements.

A space equal to ten lines of this type measures a square.

Business Notices set under a head by themselves immediately after the local news, will be charged ten cents a line for each insertion.

Advertisements should be handed in before Monday noon to insure insertion in that week's paper.

THE BEAVER ARGUS

Is published every Wednesday in the old Argus building on Third Street, Beaver, Pa., at $2 per year in advance.

Communications on subjects of local or general interest are respectfully solicited. To insure attention favors of this kind must invariably be accompanied by the name of the author.

Letters and communications should be addressed to J. WEYAND, Beaver, Pa.

Instant Relief For The Asthma.

Having been afflicted with that terrible complaint—completely baffling me for business for weeks at a time—for the last twelve years, and at last found a remedy that gives

have concluded to have it prepared for sale, so that others similarly afflicted can receive the benefit of it, assuring them that

It will do all, and more than all promised for it;

and, that persons once using, will never be without it,

As numerous others who have used it can testify.

Can be had at the Drug Store of WILLIAM H. BUECHLING, Rochester, Pa., or will be sent by mail to any address on receipt of one dollar, and ten cents to pay postage. CHAS. E. HURST, nov14,70:1y] Rochester, Beaver county, Pa.

such as Constipation, Inward Piles, Fulness or Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fullness, or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the heart, Choking or Suffering Sensations when in a lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Fever and Dull Pains in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, &c.; sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, & Great Depression of Spirits.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

A Bitters without Alcohol or Spirits of any kind.

Is different from all others. It is composed of the pure Juices, or Vital Principle of Roots, Herbs and Barks, (or as medicinally termed Extracts,) the worthless or inert portions of the ingredients not being used; Therefore, in one Bottle of these Bitters there is contained as much medicinal virtue as will be found in several gallons of ordinary mixtures. The Roots, &c., used in this Bitters, are grown in Germany, their vital principles extracted in that country by a scientific Chemist, and forwarded to the manufactory in this city, where they are compounded and bottled. Containing no spirituous ingredients, this Bitters is free from the objections urged against all others; no desire for stimulents can be induced from their use, they cannot make drunkards, and cannot under any circumstances, have any but a beneficial effect.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,

Was compounded for those not inclined to extreme bitters, and is intended for use in cases when some alcoholic stimulant is required in connection with the Tonic properties of the Bitters. Each bottle of the Tonic contains one bottle of the Bitters, combined with pure SANTA CRUZ RUM, and flavored in such a manner that the extreme bitterness of the Bitters is overcome, forming a preparation highly agreeable and pleasant to the palate and containing the medicinal virtue of the Bitters. The price of the Tonic is $1.50 per Bottle, which many persons think too high. They must take into consideration that the stimulent used is guaranteed to be of a pure quality. A poor article could be furnished at a cheaper price, but is it not better to pay a little more and have a good article? A medicinal preparation should contain none but the best ingredients; and they who expect to obtain a cheap compound, and be benefitted by it will most certainly be cheated.

SPEAK FOR THESE REMEDIES.

Who would ask for more Dignified or Stronger Testimony?

Hon. GEORGE W. WOODWARD, formerly Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, at present Member of Congress from Pennsylvania, writes:

PHILADELPHIA, March 16, 1867.

I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility and want of nervous action in the system. Yours truly,

GEORGE W. WOODWARD.

Hon. JAMES THOMPSON, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, April 26, 1867.

I consider Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it. Yours with respect,

JAMES THOMPSON.

Hon. GEORGE SHARSWOOD, Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania:

PHILADELPHIA, June 1. 1868.

I have found by experience that "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a very good tonic, relieving dyspeptic symptoms almost directly.

GEORGE SHARSWOOD.

Hon. Wm. F. Rogers, Mayor of the City of Buffalo, New-York:

Mayor's Office, Buffalo, June 29, 1869.

I have used "Hoofland's German Bitters and Tonic" in my family during the past year, and can recommend them as an excellent tonic, imparting tone and vigor to the system. Their use has been productive of decidedly beneficial effects.

WM. F. ROGERS.

Hon. Jas. M. Wood, Ex-Mayor of Williamsport, Pennsylvania:

I take great pleasure in recommending "Hoofland's German Tonic" to any one who may be afflicted with Dyspepsia. I had the Dyspepsia so badly it was impossible to keep any food on my stomach, and I became so weak as not to be able to walk half a mile. Two bottles of Tonic effected a perfect cure. JAMES M. WOOD.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC

Will cure every Case of

MARASMUS,

Or Wasting away of the Body.

REMEMBER

THAT

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES

Are the medicines you require to purify the Blood, excite the torpid Liver to healthy action, and to enable you to pass safely through any hardships or exposure,

DR. HOOFLAND'S

PODOPHYLLIN,

Or Substitute for Mercury Pills.

TWO PILLS A DOSE.

The Most Powerful, yet Innocent, Vegetable Cathartic known.

It is not necessary to take a handful of these pills to produce the desired effect. They act quickly and powerfully, cleansing the Liver, Stomach and Bowels of all impurities. The principal ingredient in Podophyllin, or Mandrake itself. Its peculiar action is upon the Liver, clearing it especially from all obstructions, with all the power of Mercury, yet free from the injurious results attached to the use of that mineral.

For all diseases, in which a dose of a cathartic is indicated, these pills will give entire satisfaction in every case. THEY NEVER FAIL.

In cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia and extreme costiveness, Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic should be used in connection with the Pills. A single effect of the Bitters or Tonic builds up the system. The Bitters or Tonic purifies the Blood, strengthens the Nerves, REGULATES the Liver, and gives strength, energy and vigor.

Keep your Bowels active with the Pills, and tone up the system with Bitters or Tonic, and no disease can retain its hold, or ever recall.

Recollect that it is DR. HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES that are so universally used and highly recommended; and do not allow the Druggist to induce you to take anything else that he may say is just as good, because he makes a larger profit on it. These Remedies will be sent by Express to any locality, upon application to the PRINCIPAL OFFICE, at the GERMAN MEDICINE STORE, 631 Arch st., Philadelphia

BETSEY DEFENDS THE PAPER.

Sequel to "Betsey and I are Out."

BY HELEN HARLOW BOSTWICK.

I've brought back the paper, lawyer, and fetched the parson here
To see that things are regular; settled up fair and clear:
For I've been talking with Caleb, and Caleb has talked with me,
And the amount of it is we're minded to try once more to agree.

So I came here on the business,—only a word to say—
(Caleb's sticking pea-vines, and couldn't come to day.)
Just to tell you and parson how that we've chang'd our mind.
So I'll tear up the paper, you see it wasn't signed.

And now, if parson is ready, I'll walk with him towards home.
I want to thank his people for some things; 'twas kind of him to come.
He showed the Christian spirit, stood by us firm and true,
We mightn't have changed our mind, 'squire, if he'd been a lawyer too.

There! How good the sun feels, and the grass and blowin' trees!
Something in them lawyers makes me feel fit to preach.
I wasn't bound to state particulars to that man,
But it is right you should know, parson, about our change of plan.

We'd been some days a wavering' a little, Caleb and me,
And watched the hateful paper at the bottom of the tea;
But I guess 'twas the prayer last evening, and the new words you said,
That thawed the ice between us, and bro't things to a head.

You see when we came to a division, there was things that wouldn't divide,
There was our twelve-year-old baby, she couldn't be satisfied
To go with one or the other, but just kept whimpering low,
"I'll stay with papa and mamma, and where they go I'll go.

Then there was Grandsire's Bible, he died on our wedding day,
And Caleb he wanted the old Bible, and should it go
The chance that was Caleb's mother's, her sampler on the wall.
With the sweet old names worked in—Tryphena and Ruske, and Paul.

It began to be hard then, parson, but it grew harder still,
Talkin' of Caleb established down at McHenryville;
Three dollars a week, 'twould cost him; no wonder sure of care,
And board at the Widow Meacham's, a woman that wears false hair.

Still we went on a talkin'; I agreed to knit some socks,
And make a dozen striped shirts, and a pair of wa'mus frocks;
And he was to cut a door way from the kitchen to the shed,
"Save yer climbing steps much, in frosty weather," he said.

He brought me the pen at last—I felt a sinkin'—and he Looked as he did with the ague, in the spring of sixty-three;
'Twas then you dropped in, parson, 'twasn't much that was said,
"Little children love one another," but the thing was killed stone dead.

I should like to make confession; not that I'm going to say
The fault was all on my side, that never was my way.
But it may be true that woman—tho' how 'tis I can't see—
Are a trifle more aggravatin' than men know how to be.

IN The Columbus Sun of the 21st inst. the Hon. A. H. Stephens controverts The New York World and the "New Departure." Says Mr. Stephens: "If any Democrat has changed his opinion and come to the conclusion that the Radical policy was right, then it is not dishonorable for him to say so; but when he does it, the only honorable course for him to pursue afterwards is to go and join the party."

THE funeral of Mr. Vallandigham at Dayton Ohio, last week was very largely attended, the procession being about two miles in length. Prominent men of both political parties followed his remains to their final resting place; and it is creditable to the Republican press of the country to note that with rarely an exception they have spoken with commendable charity of his course during the war, and at the same time, admiringly of the great talents he possessed.

AND now we are told that Henry Ward Beecher is about to be led through the intricacies of the law. He is the editor-in-chief of the Christian Union, and his sister, Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's new novel, entitled "My wife and I," has appeared in the columns of that paper recently. Mrs. Victoria Woodhull and her sister Miss Tenny C. Claflin, allege that they are the female characters of the novel, and ask the courts to oblige Mr. Beecher and his publishers to give them $250,000 by way of damages for their soiled reputations.

COL. LEWIS D. CAMPBELL Democrat, who beat Gen. Schenck for Congress in the Dayton, Ohio, district, objects to the "New Departure" programme, and his objection seems to be well taken. He don't know where to go. He left the Republican party some time ago on account of the Fifteenth Amendment. Now if he accepts that same Amendment is there not a little danger of his waking up some morning and finding himself a Republican member of Congress? Under these circumstances he asks, "what's a fellow to do?"

AN important order has recently been issued from the Indian Department which it is thought will be certain to avoid any general Indian war in Texas. General Sherman has advised the withholding of supplies from all Indians but those actually on the reservation, and an order has been issued accordingly. The officers are to be allowed to follow the Indians on the reservation and to make arrests at the request of General Sherman. Also orders have been issued to turn all guilty of murder and robbery, over to the Government of Texas for trial.

THE Republicans of Ohio held their State Convention at Columbus on last Wednesday. General Noyes, a one-legged soldier, was nominated for Governor by acclamation. The following additional nominations were made: For Lieut. Gov.—Jacob Muller; for Supreme Judge—William H. West; for State Treasurer.—Isaac R. Welsh; for Auditor—James Williams; for Attorney General—Francis B. Pond; for School Commissioner—T. W. Harvey.

The ticket is regarded as a very strong, and the Republicans of that State have confidence in their ability to elect it by 20,000 majority.

THE M. E. Book Concern Committee, before which Dr. Lanahan is on trial, were engaged on Friday last in listening to the summing up of Judge Reynolds for the defense. Gen. Runyon then addressed the Committee for the prosecution. It is thought the case will be closed today, but the decision will not be given. In the case in which he applied to the Supreme Court for a mandamus to compel Carleton, agent for the Concern, to allow him to examine the books up to 1865, Judge Barnard denied the application, the principal grounds being that the Doctor, before making the charges, should have had the proofs in his possession, and that the Committee was not bound to furnish evidence against itself.

THE Cleveland Plain Dealer eloquently warns young ladies against corresponding with people they do not know, in reply to newspapers. It concludes its sensible counsel thus:

> Susceptible young ladies of a romantic disposition and addicted to reading sensational novels are apt to make just such ventures. They have doubtless read in the stories floating about in the newspapers of some happy marriage of persons who had become acquainted with each other in this way, and scorning these pernicious fictions as trash, they straightway desire to find a hero in the same manner. Alas! how many families have been plunged in distress, how many homes have been made desolate by the evil consequence!
> But the unhappy results we have mentioned are not the worst. In many cases they have accomplished the ruin of the unwary; in others they have brought about murder. It is scarcely necessary to call the attention of our people of this locality to the case of Valentine, now serving a term in the Ohio Penitentiary for killing the real or supposed seducer of a wife found by an advertisement for a correspondence while the prisoner was a soldier. Nor need we mention the more horrible crime of Hunter who, seeing the photograph of a pretty face, begged to correspond with the original; and when she—after foolishly consenting—sought to discard him, he went to her home in Richfield and in cold blood murdered her father and mother, shot her brother, fired at another man, and made desperate efforts to kill her.
> Young ladies! be exceedingly particular with whom you correspond, and never be induced to write to a stranger "for fun," or "with a view to matrimony."

THE Mayor of Eutaw, Ala., has been testifying before the Ku-Klux Committee of Congress; and, according to his own showing, his Honor has very liberal views of the duties of his office. When there was an election riot at Eutaw last Autumn this local officer saw a great deal of shooting, in fact, he was in the midst of it. He did not notice who fired the shots, as his attention was diverted by the negroes, who were running. This model Mayor laughed, it seems, so heartily to see the negroes flee before the pistols of those who drove them from the polls that he forgot to read the Riot Act or take any measures to uphold the majesty of the law. Eutaw, Ala., is not a healthy place for colored voters.

COALITIONS always provoke a great appetite for office. The Democrats and Labor Reformers of New Hampshire seem likely to come to a grievous misunderstanding respecting the distribution of the spoils. The L. R. party, small as it is, has an unbounded stomach, and wants almost everything. Suddenly it has occurred to the Reforming mind, that if the L. R.'s go on helping the Democrats to unseat Republican members, before a great while "Democracy" will be strong enough to get along without assistance, and can then pitch Labor Reform to the bow-wows, as we always supposed that it would if it had an opportunity. So the present game of the Laborers is to have no more members unseated until the spoils have been divided.

THE Louisville Journal adopts the suggestion of General Forrest, Jacob Thompson, and other prominent men of the South, that it will be best for the Southern States to hold aloof from the next Democratic National Convention. This idea is quite popular in Tennessee and Mississippi. As to Georgia, the Macon Telegraph says they want a change of administration "to lift from them the awful burden of proscription by the National Government." A change of men and influences is desired. The Richmond Whig rather likes this scheme, because it relieves the South of responsibility, and imposes it on the North. It proposes that the South adopt the platform and the ticket of the party which pleases it best. A "National" Democratic Convention, with ten or a dozen States unrepresented, would be a fearful spectacle.

THERE arrived at Alexandria, Va., yesterday afternoon, in a most pitiable condition, a Mrs. C. H. Damon and her child. She is the widow of a missionary who died in New Zealand a few years ago, leaving her destitute. She left New Zealand last December with five children for Montgomery, Alabama. On her way the vessel she was on was wrecked in the Bay of Biscay, and she was picked up by a passing vessel and taken to London. She lost four of her children at sea, and after many perils and hardships has finally arrived at Alexandria, where she has relatives. She has had more hairbreadth escapes than often fall to the lot of even the most of missionaries.

FROM present appearances Chief Justice Chase stands a fair chance of being the Democratic nominee for the Presidency in 1872. It has been stated quite frequently of late that his personal friend, the late C. L. Vallandigham, prepared the "New Departure" programme, expressly to enable Mr. Chase, without self-stultification, to lead the Democracy in the next Presidential contest. The annexed letter at all events written by the Chief Justice to Vallandigham and published for the first time since the latter's death, indicates quite clearly that no great political gulf lay between these distinguished Ohioans:

> "WASHINGTON, May 20.—My Dear Sir: I have just read the resolutions of the Montgomery Co. Democratic Convention, reported by yourself, together with your remarks and those of Mr. Houk. You have rendered great service to your country and party at least once in my judgment. My only declaration that the movement contemplated by the resolutions is the restoration of the Democratic party to its ancient platform of progress and reform. I hope you will be able to stand on that platform as the best way to shield every one of your fidelity to your convictions.
> "Very truly yours, S. P. CHASE
> "To Hon. C. L. Vallandigham."

THE State Committee of the Republican party of Pennsylvania met at Altoona on the 21st. The attendance was large. The Chairman was authorized to appoint a Secretary, and Ezra Lukins, D. F. Houston of Philadelphia and P. W. Lytle of Huntingdon were elected additional Secretaries. General Bingham of Philadelphia was selected the Treasurer for the committee. The committee having now chosen its officers it is to be hoped that work will be commenced without delay. And if money is raised to defray the expenses of the campaign it should be judiciously and honestly expended to promote the interests of the party and the success of the State ticket. We do not want to hear Russell Errett say this year what John Covode is reported to have said at the close of last year's campaign, viz: that a certain politician had "filched $3,000 from the State committee and appropriated it to his own use." It is time that kind of work should stop.—What we want now is activity on the part of the State committee, faithfulness in the rank and file, and an honest disbursement of whatever funds are contributed to aid in achieving success.

INDIAN Commissioner Brunot telegraphed to the Bureau at Washington, from Cheyenne, on Tuesday last, that he had just returned from Fort Laramie, where he held a council with Red Cloud and several Sioux Chiefs, the bulk of whose tribes are on the Southern border of the north fork of the Platte, where they have been for the last three months, contrary to the wishes of the government, trading with unlicensed white men of the border. Commissioner Brunot recently endeavored to induce Red Cloud to move farther north a hundred miles to near Rawhide Butts, where the Commissioner promised him that annuity goods and rations should be distributed and an agency established. The Sioux regard this as surrendering just one hundred miles more of their country, and Red Cloud said he would have great difficulty in persuading his people to move so far back. It is in accordance with the treaty, and for this reason the Commissioner urges it, as well as to get the Sioux away from the traders, but Red Cloud says now, as he said when here at Washington that he did not understand the treaty and would not have signed it if he did. Red Cloud promised, however, to go north and hold a conference with the northern chiefs and report back to Brunot within two moons.

RATHER a remarkable case of cerebral affection has occurred at Somerville, Mass. A lad named Dickinson suddenly disappeared from his home. Two days after he returned in an exhausted condition. He stated that after indulging in vigorous play with other boys, and then, with his body heated, went into the water to swim. The next day he went to school, feeling ill, and studied hard. In the afternoon he went for a walk and remembers nothing more until he found himself in Manchester, N. Y. When his senses had returned he started homeward, and walked all the way. His shoes and stockings were worn out. He is now in a serious condition from fatigue and fever. The danger of bathing when heated should induce great caution.

HERE AND THERE.

—The locusts are making night hideous in the vicinity of Mquaoketa and Iowa City. The forests are full of them, and their numbers are daily increasing, while, of course, their ravages upon the foliage of the trees and bushes is fearful. It is said their constant noise is so great that the farmers of the localities where they most abound cannot hear the cow bells of their cattle grazing, among the timber.

—A Wisconsin blacksmith has a ready hand to assist the suffering. A few mornings ago, very early, a gentleman dressed in striped uniform, with the dew still hanging in beads from his uncovered hair and beard, stepped into the accommodating blacksmith's shop, and presenting a pair of brawny wrists, desired to have hand-cuffs filed off from them, which the kind hearted blacksmith proceeded to do. The gentleman in striped uniform then stepped off down the street, and disappeared around the first corner.

—A singular character lately died in Erie county. Having been disappointed in a love affair when young, he took himself from the haunts of men, and when at home always wore female apparel, and called himself Miss Buck. If caught in the garb of a man, he would say that Miss Buck would be in presently, at once retire, and presently return as the lady of the house. "And sich is life," or at least one phase of it.

—Near Grenada, Miss., on last Sunday, Dr. Wall, a prominent and influential planter, who resides some twelve miles from Grenada, was assassinated by some party or parties unknown. Much excitement is prevailing in the neighborhood, and every effort is being made to ferret out the perpetrators of the dark deed. No cause can be assigned except that he was disliked by a number of evil-doers and lawless persons residing near him.

—The Jackson (Miss.) Pilot says: Five persons have recently been found dead in the southern part of this State, under mulberry trees. Death in all these cases has been attributed to eating mulberries which had been impregnated by locusts. In the stomach of one colored boy, says the Woodville Republican, were found a quantity of mulberry seeds and the locust eggs. Two children in Wilkinson county are also reported to have died from eating plums similarly impregnated.

—The Boston Transcript says: Three years ago a tour of the Rocky Mountains was undertaken by a private citizen in his own carriage. The journey, the most remarkable ever made by a lady, was accomplished a few days ago; and the authors, Mr. Z. M. Smith and his wife, returned to their homes last week. They made with their own horse 12,000 miles, and over 30,000 by steam, saddle and in Indian canoes, visiting every mining camp and village from Montana to Mexico, at an expense of over $25,000, traversing nearly every canon, road or Indian trail. Their object has been to embody in lectures the result of their rich and varied experience.

—The following is related as an incident of the sacking of Paris: "A boy of thirteen found fighting was taken to be shot. He took a silver watch from his pocket and cried out, 'Captain, do let me take this first to a friend across the street; I borrowed it.' 'Oh! you scamp,' said the officer, 'I understand, you want to run off.' 'My word of honor, I will come back again,' said the boy, and the Captain seeing it was a child, was only too glad to get rid of him. In ten minutes the boy came back and took his stand with his face to the wall. 'Here I am, fire!' Does Roman history tell us anything braver? The Captain boxed the little hero's ears and ordered him never to show his face there again. They could not fire on him."

—At last a monument is to be erected over the grave of the late Thaddeus Stevens in Shreiner's Cemetery, at Lancaster. The Express relates in this connection an anecdote of the "Old Commoner" never before published. When Mr. Stevens discovered that there was a clause in the charters of the several Cemeteries of Lancaster prohibiting the burial of any but white persons in them he declined to take any of the lots, and went to Shreiner's Cemetery, where no such prohibition existed. He purchased two adjoining lots. One of his friends, in view of the fact that there was no one but himself to be buried in them, asked him why he secured so much ground. "Oh, well," he replied in his inimitable humorous way, "some poor devil may come along one of these days, and will have no place to go. He can turn in with me."

—There is nothing sacred in this age of slang verses. Think of a Baltimore poet daring to write of the Death of Cleopatra after this fashion:

> "She got a little pison snake,
> And hid it in her gown;
> It gave its little tail a shake,
> And did her job up brown!
> She tumbled down upon her bed,
> Where she was wont to lie—
> Removed her chignon from her head,
> And followed Antony."

Upon reading this nonsense, we began to feel savage and critical, and to ask ourselves if such things should be permitted by law? Suddenly, there burst upon us a sense of the absurdity of useless wrath. The time may come when the value of things serious and lovely and of good report will be restored; and until then the parodists and burlesquers must have their own way. But still, what is called "American Humor" has a great deal to answer for.

—The Grape Growers of the United States, it is argued, follow the processes of the culture of the vine in Europe too closely. Thus the excessive pruning of the French vine districts, practiced here, it is believed, cripples seriously the productive power of the American grapes. A recent traveler through the vine-growing countries of Europe, after careful observation, resolved to vary the treatment and now raises his trellisses to the height of twelve feet, and trains his vines so as to produce the greatest fruitage at the top of the trellis. The result of this method showed that the elevation of the branches from the ground, and their greater exposure to the sun, secured the grapes from rot and mildew, while these diseases to a considerable extent affected the neighboring vines treated according to the old method.

Something for People to Wonder About.

About fifteen years ago a very fine looking young woman appeared on the stage of the Varieties theatre, the Galeties of New Orleans, under the management of Dion Boucicault.—There was the usual story respecting this attractive lady—that she was of excellent family in Philadelphia, had suffered great reverses of fortune, and being possessed of talent, beauty and a great love of the drama, naturally sought to signalize herself, and exploit her talents and charms by a theatrical engagement. This procured from Mr. Boucicault, who, knowing the high appreciation of natural beauty by the stockholders of the Galeties, justly calculated that she would prove a great hit.

In this he was not disappointed, so far as the lady's physical charms were concerned. Her dramatic talents, however, did not prove so successful—she was no artist in the stage sense, but was evidently a skillful actor on the large stage of the world, and understood how to capture and command the admirers of physical luxuriance and beauty. The debutante at the Galeties soon became a great card, and the front seats of the parquette were always secured when she appeared by some of the wild men of the city, who were regarded as connoisseurs in the special line of attractiveness in which she was so highly endowed.

Very assiduous were the attentions, and very splendid the testimonials bestowed upon the beautiful actress by those liberal and genial admirers. The season passed, however, without any special consequence or result of these attentions, and the lady disappeared from the scene. She had passed from the recollection of her old friends, and it was presumed, with others, had at last attained what was unclassifiably expected to be the goal of her ambition and graceful bearing, and settled down as the beautiful wife of some wealthy gentleman, who was capable of appreciating so much beauty and elegance.

But the latest fashionable intelligence from the Old World has shown that this was an erroneous conclusion. The Court Journal of London announces the recent marriage of the elegant Miss Jessie McLean to Lord Cowper, the stepson of the late Lord Palmerston the possessor of the handsome income of £10,000. The "booful" walking lady of the Galeties has now become the stately and elegant Lady Cowper. She will adorn the brilliant circle which she has entered, and will worthily fill the place once occupied with so much eclat by the accomplished wife of England's famous Premier.—Philadelphia Day.

Fancy of a Fashionable Belle for a Heathen Chinee.

An unusual tit-bit is now going the rounds of fashionable gossip, says the New York Star, relating to the strange fancy of an up-town belle for a veritable "heathen Chinee."

The young lady in question is an exceedingly stylish and handsome brunette, who has been splendidly educated at the Georgetown convent, where she graduated about a year ago. Since that time she has been the sole mistress of her father's elegant and aristocratic mansion near Murray Hill.

The young lady is motherless, and an only child. She has been indulged in every whim by her fond father, who is immensely proud of his daughter's beauty and accomplishments. About six months ago the father took into the household as butler or steward a remarkably clever and intelligent "Celestial." "Cat-like, dreamy-eyed, yellow, and slim" of according to some form of general government for this Territory, resolved, therefore, that the action of the General Council, in December, 1870, which framed and submitted a Constitution to the several nations represented in said Council is hereby reaffirmed.

Providing for creating a Provisional Government, and the election of a Governor and other officers whose duties shall be such as are prescribed by the Constitution. This report was followed by a proposition of Mr. Brown, the Seminole delegate, to amend the Constitution so as to provide for an equal representation in the Senate of the Cherokee, Creek, Choctaw, Chickasaw and Seminole nations. This proposition has been earnestly discussed for several days. W. P. Ross, the Cherokee Chief, objected to it on the ground that it would destroy the principle of representation according to the population provided for in the Constitution, and would deprive the Ottawas and the Confederate Peorias, Quapamas, Senecas, Wyandottes, Shawnees and Osages, the small tribes, of equitable representation in the Senate. He further argued that inasmuch as the Constitution had already been accepted by the Creeks, it would endanger the Confederation to now make an amendment. This view is held by the ablest Chiefs. The further consideration was postponed until Monday, 12th.

Prospects of the Wheat Crop.

Washington, June 20.—The June returns of the statistical Department of Agricultural indicate a small increase in the average of the wheat crop, amounting to about 4 per cent on nearly three-fourths of a million acres. Nearly all this increase is west of the Mississippi River. The States indicating an enlargement of area in this crop are as follows:

New York, 1 per cent; New Jersey 2; Ohio, 6; Michigan, 4; Wisconsin, 4; Minnesota, 10; Iowa, 15; Kansas, 30; Nebraska, 25; and Oregon, 3. A small decrease appears in the New England States; in Pennsylvania a reduction of 2 per cent; Maryland, 3; Kentucky, 3; Indiana, 2; Mississippi, 2; and South Carolina, 8. The condition of the crop in Massachusetts is placed at 14 per cent below an average; Connecticut, 6; New York, 2; Virginia, 8; North Carolina, 18; South Carolina, 27; Georgia, 25; Alabama, 23; Mississippi, 4; Texas, 14; Arkansas, 13; Tennessee, 26; Kentucky, 20; Indiana, 3, and California, 42. The states reporting superior conditions are: Delaware, 2; Maryland, 2; West Virginia, 4; Ohio, 7; Michigan, 6; Wisconsin, 6; Minnesota, 2; Illinois, 3; Iowa 8; Missouri, 4; Kansas 9; Nebraska, 6; Oreogon, 4.

With the exception of California, no principal wheat-growing State indicates a poor yield of wheat, and most of them give promise of a product sufficient to make good the loss on the Pacific Coast and the trifling reduction elsewhere. If no disasters are encountered hereafter the crop should fully equal that of last year.

A Paridise in California.

Mr. R. Boles owns a splendid homestead near Rattlesnake Bar, Placer county, embracing three hundred and twenty acres. Originally located for a mining claim, its agricultural features have been recognized as its chief attraction. From the mining claim on the river the ranche extends back over a beautiful, fertile tract of low land, backed by a heavy-timbered hill-slope. The whole tract is particularly adapted to the growth of grapes and semi-tropical fruit, and is remarkably well watered. The numerous small ravines contain dense thickets of wild blackberries, grapes, etc. A profusion of wild orange-blossoms, moss-roses, honey-suckles, passion flowers, &c., present a luxuriance of natural beauty but seldom seen. The orchards on the place have grown to forest-like proportions. A Rhode Island greening last season produced a ton of apples; A pear tree yielded thirty bushels. White muscatines average forty pounds of grapes. Other trees in proportion. The foot-hill and mountain regions of California abound in similar nooks, whose beauties will some day catch the eye of some artistic agriculturist. The combination of agricultural and mining industry promises a great development of wealth and prosperity in this region.

Something for People to Wonder About.

About fifteen years ago a very fine looking young woman appeared on the stage of the Varieties theatre, the Galeties of New Orleans, under the management of Dion Boucicault.—There was the usual story respecting this attractive lady—that she was of excellent family in Philadelphia, had suffered great reverses of fortune, and being possessed of talent, beauty and a great love of the drama, naturally sought to signalize herself, and exploit her talents and charms by a theatrical engagement. This procured from Mr. Boucicault, who, knowing the high appreciation of natural beauty by the stockholders of the Galeties, justly calculated that she would prove a great hit.

In this he was not disappointed, so far as the lady's physical charms were concerned. Her dramatic talents, however, did not prove so successful—she was no artist in the stage sense, but was evidently a skillful actor on the large stage of the world, and understood how to capture and command the admirers of physical luxuriance and beauty. The debutante at the Galeties soon became a great card, and the front seats of the parquette were always secured when she appeared by some of the wild men of the city, who were regarded as connoisseurs in the special line of attractiveness in which she was so highly endowed.

Very assiduous were the attentions, and very splendid the testimonials bestowed upon the beautiful actress by those liberal and genial admirers. The season passed, however, without any special consequence or result of these attentions, and the lady disappeared from the scene. She had passed from the recollection of her old friends, and it was presumed, with others, had at last attained what was unclassifiably expected to be the goal of her ambition and graceful bearing, and settled down as the beautiful wife of some wealthy gentleman, who was capable of appreciating so much beauty and elegance.

But the latest fashionable intelligence from the Old World has shown that this was an erroneous conclusion. The Court Journal of London announces the recent marriage of the elegant Miss Jessie McLean to Lord Cowper, the stepson of the late Lord Palmerston the possessor of the handsome income of £10,000. The "booful" walking lady of the Galeties has now become the stately and elegant Lady Cowper. She will adorn the brilliant circle which she has entered, and will worthily fill the place once occupied with so much eclat by the accomplished wife of England's famous Premier.—Philadelphia Day.

Fancy of a Fashionable Belle for a Heathen Chinee.

An unusual tit-bit is now going the rounds of fashionable gossip, says the New York Star, relating to the strange fancy of an up-town belle for a veritable "heathen Chinee."

The young lady in question is an exceedingly stylish and handsome brunette, who has been splendidly educated at the Georgetown convent, where she graduated about a year ago. Since that time she has been the sole mistress of her father's elegant and aristocratic mansion near Murray Hill.

The young lady is motherless, and an only child. She has been indulged in every whim by her fond father, who is immensely proud of his daughter's beauty and accomplishments. About six months ago the father took into the household as butler or steward a remarkably clever and intelligent "Celestial." "Cat-like, dreamy-eyed, yellow, and slim" of the new butler performed his duties admirably.

It was not long, however, before the almond eyes of the Asiatic and the sparkling orbs of his beautiful mistress interchanged many glances of admiration whenever the duties of the household brought them together in communication.

Long and more frequent became their interviews. More and more interested were they in the household accounts and—with each other. The servants whispered among themselves about the strange intimacy between their mistress and that Heathen Chinee, whose smile was so child-like and bland. About two weeks ago the father came home unexpectedly, and, entering the library suddenly, was horror-struck at the sight of his lovely daughter in the arms of the loving "Celestial." The way that he went for that "Heathen Chinee" would have gladdened the heart of Mr. William Nye, could he have witnessed the scene that ensued.

In vain the daughter cried, and pleaded her love, avowing her determination to marry him. It only added fuel to the flame of wrath consuming her father's heart. John was forcibly convinced of the necessity of an immediate departure not only from the house, but from New York also. Bountifully supplied with "Melican man's money," he is now fast nearing China, leaving his lovely and loving brunette, surrounded by watchful eyes, to mourn the loss of her Mongolian lover, and await with resignation the "coming man."

Credit of the United States Government.

As the effort is now being made to put on the market at par Government stock, bearing respectively 5 per cent., 4½ per cent., and 4 per cent. interest, it is a matter of moment to determine the rates now actually realized on Government securities as indicated by the current market prices. It appears, on careful calculation, that the rate of interest realized on the 30th-year Pacific Railroad bonds of 1862 and 1864, and running respectively 21 and 23 years from this time, is exactly 5 per cent.—5.98 per cent. in the one case and 5.03 per cent. in the other. It also appears from the market price of the 10-40 5 per cent. bonds of 1864, that the annual rate of interest realized, asuming that they yet have 30 years to run, is 5.19 per cent.

The new 10-year 5 per cent. coin bonds, interest payable quarterly, which are now being put on the market, have certain advantages, certain elements of popularity, which are not offered by the 10-40 5 per cent. bonds of 1864, to wit: the quarterly payment of interest, its payment by check, and the absolute freedom of these bonds from taxation. There can then be no reason for surprise that these 5 per cent. bonds so readily find a market.

In June, 1869, about two years ago, the rate of interest realized on Government securities, as indicated by the market prices, was about 7 4-10ths per cent., instead of from 5 to 5 and a fraction per cent. as now.

Passing by the period of the war, we find the rate realized in the first four months of 1861 (the first year of the war) to have been 8-14 per cent. The average rate realized of Government securities in open market during the year 1860 was, on 5 per cent. stock, 5.02 per cent.; in 1859 it was 4.-59 per cent. In 1854 U. S. 6 per cent. stock having 8 years to run sold in open market at an average of 120.27, (or, deducting the accrued interest, at 118.94,) indicating 3.29 per cent., the rate of interest realized. The average rate realized on the U. S. stock sold in 1855, one year later, was 3.27 per cent.

From the above it will be seen that when the United States Government is in its normal condition of prosperity, free from war or the burden of a large debt, such is then its credit that its securities command in the market rates of interest realized from 3.27 per cent. to about 5.02 per cent.

This presentation, taken in connection with the fact that since the close of the war, and especially since the incoming of the present Administration, the rates at which Government can borrow in open market have gradually and rapidly diminished, assures us in the conviction that if the present policy of the Government continues unchanged, (as is probable,) and if no foreign or domestic trouble of moment intervene, we may be able in a few months, successfully, to place on sale in the market the proposed transfer securities of 4½ and 4 per cent.

Immense Reduction of the Pension Office.

The statement of the condition of the business of the Pension Office on the first of June furnishes interesting information. There are yet pending in the office 96,234 claims for pensions, of which 56,714 are army invalids, 26,095 soldiers' widows and dependent heirs, 768 navy invalids, 640 sailors' widows and dependent heirs, 602 colored claimants, and 21,955 claims of the war of 1812. The army and navy rejected claims number 39,617. The number of invalid claims not reached for action or in which evidence has been received but not applied, is 2,736; widows' claims in the same condition, 3,021; navy claims, 145; colored claimants, 1,963; total not reached, 7,885. The number of pensioners on the rolls June 30, 1870, was 207,136; increase, 8,500. The amount for pensions paid for the twelve months preceding June 30, 1870, was $27,332,220 90; for the twelve months succeeding June 30, 1870, $28,-132,169 67.

The Confederate Bondholder's Hopes Reviving.

(From The Manchester Guardian, June 8.)

One consequence of the Treaty of Washington has been to revive the almost extinct hopes of the Confederate cotton bondholders in the ultimate success of their claims against the United States. They held a meeting in London yesterday "to consider the course that should be adopted." If there was one document that most people believed to be of equal value with a Confederate "shin plaster," it is a Confederate cotton bond; but the bondholders refuse to believe in the hopelessness of their case. Successive Governments here, have been memorialized by them with the view of securing from the Washington Administration a "claim consideration" of their claims, which rest, they allege, on moral equity and international law. The bondholders believe that one of the articles of the Treaty, which provides for the reference to a mixed commission of the claims of British subjects "arising out of the war," exactly meets their case, and they have been courteously informed that it will be "quite open" to them to lay their claims before that tribunal, if it should meet.

Who Wrote Jackson's Proclamation.

The following note addressed to Horace Greeley, appears in the New York Tribune of Wednesday: In your speech at New Orleans, when speaking of General Jackson's Proclamation, you said: "Edward Livingston probably wrote it." The following statement may be implicitly relied on as correct: During the political campaign of 1848 in Ohio, an intimate friend of mine, David Begges, esq., drove Governor Corwin to and from New Lisbon, Ohio, in his carriage. During business in the same office, I asked Mr. Begges the day after if he had any conversation with Mr. Corwin of special interest. Mr. Begges replied that he had asked Mr. Corwin if he knew who wrote Gen. Jackson's Proclamation Mr. Corwin answered. "Some years ago, I had some business in the office of the Chesapeak and Ohio Canal Company, which I transacted with Louis McLane, of Delaware, who was the President of the company. When my business was finished, I asked him if he knew who wrote Gen. Jackson's Proclamation. Mr. McLane then arose from his seat, and drew from a pigeon-hole a document which he handed to me, saying it was the protocol of the proclamation, with interlineations and corrections. Mr. McLane also said that, on account of General Jackson's handwriting being obsure, he was obliged to make a copy for the printer's use."

CHAS. D. HOSTETTER.

MORINGO, IOWA, June 15, 1871.

—A ruling prejudice may be as strong in death as a ruling passion. The hard, earnest way in which some folk hate "niggers" affords really a curious subject for study. The other day, Mr. J. S. White died, leaving $70,000 to the University of Vermont at Burlington. This would seem to show Mr. White to have been a benevolent man, for he bequeathed this money to aid indigent students; and yet this legacy was given upon the express condition that no colored student should ever receive a dollar of it—colored students, as matters now are, being precisely the class most likely to be indigent and to need pecuniary assistance. It's melancholy to think of, but there is every reason to suppose that Mr. White has gone to a place where White folks have no special privileges.

—Attention having been called to the fact in official documents sent to Congress some months ago by the Secretary of the Treasury, that amount due to Collectors of the Internal Revenue was represented to exceed $20,000,000, while the statement of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, published a few days since, represented the deficiency at less than $3,000,000. The following explanation is given: The Secretary, when a Collector goes out of office, reports all unsettled taxes on his lists charged to him on the books of his successor. As these taxes are collected they are credited to him, but if any taxes have been wrongfully assessed, or assessed against insolvent firms, they still remain charged to the collector until finally settled and the accounts of the ex-Collector with the bureau entirely closed. Until the advent of the present administration the number of unsettled accounts of ex-Collectors has been constantly increasing, so that some accounts which, should have been closed early during the war, were in 1869 still found open. These accounts have during the past two years been gradually settled, so that comparitively few of them now of them remain unclosed. The Secretary's statement showed the total amount charged to ex-Collectors on the books of the Bureau, as explained above; but the statement just published shows the actual amount of cash due. A great portion of this will yet be obtained. By the first of July Commissioner Pleasanton expects to have the force of Assistant Assessors reduced to the maximum number. This will make the total number about fifteen hundred. He has now under consideration the adoption of a new kind of paper for beer, distilled spirits, tobacco and cigar stamps, samples of which were furnished by the Hudson paper mills of New York.

The Orleans Princess.

In the days of General McClellan, in the early days of our war, says a correspondent of the New York Evening Mail, there appeared in the salons of Washington two slender young men in the beloved uniform of our own Northern soldier, the dark blue coat with gilt buttons, white belt, and with modest stars on their shoulders. They were very tall, handsome youths, with delightful manners, and with the elegant simplicity which makes the well-born, well-bred man. Both were young and unmarried. Frequently one of them could be seen covered with mud, riding hurriedly through Washington to the headquarters of his general. In the evening, faultlessly neat, they would be seen at the balls and parties, dancing or talking and laughing with the ladies, with whom they were great favorites. When the general departed for the Peninsula his two aides went with him, and there is no more interesting picture of the war than that of Gen. Fitz John Porter sitting calmly on his horse receiving the young aid, who, with hat in hand, his hair blowing in the wind, respectfully tenders him a dispatch from headquarters. The bullets are flying about them—it was the great day of "Seven Pines"—and we were being badly driven, but the young aid was receiving, as his uncle said eloquently, "the last touch" without which the education of a French gentleman is incompetent—the knowledge of danger. He met it nobly and learned it well.

This young aid-de-camp of General McClellan was Louis Philippe d'Orleans Count de Paris, and his brother was the Duke de Chartres. They are both admirable young men. They have fought for us on the right side, and they are the best "look out," the French people have. Louis d'Philippe is my candidate for the French throne, and I hope I may some day take off my hat to him, as he did to his superior officer, not amid flying bullets but under waving banners.

—Three sisters named Hurlbut, who came into the world simultaneously, are now living together in Litchfield, Conn., aged 84. They have rarely been separated, and have always enjoyed excellent health.

ALL kinds of cotton and woolen goods have advanced at the eastern market, but notwithstanding you can buy at M. Schiff's Dry Goods Store at New Brighton, unbleached and bleached muslins, prints, shawls and flannel at the old low prices. He also has a large lot of those long ladies' hose, which he is still selling at 10 cts and 12½ cts per pair. In embroideries you will find nowhere a bigger stock and such low prices than at M. Schiff's, Broadway, New Brighton.

Did You Hear it?—The Cape Ann Advertiser says that beef steaks are selling at ten cents per pound in Maine. Happy would be the people of Beaver, if we had the same assurance with regard to beef steaks, that we used to have in regard to politics—"As goes Maine so goes the Union."

THE Clothing Store of R. Steinfeld at New Brighton, is the place where every one goes who wants to get the value of their money. Although woolen goods have advanced from 10 to 15 per cent., he is still selling his stock of ready made clothing at astonishing low figures. Also is he making up to order gents' and boys' garments at lower prices than any one in this county. Call and examine and be convinced, at Broadway, New Brighton.

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that, on and after May 6th, and until the 1st of September, the County Commissioners will meet at their office in the borough of Beaver, only on Saturday of each week. [ma8:tf] JOHN M'GOUN, Clerk.

Mr. John Plessinger, an old citizen of Bluffton, Ind., met with quite an accident on Saturday afternoon last. He, together with his little grandson, Mart Bulger, was taking the horses to pasture when the horse on which young Bulger was mounted, took fright and Mr. Plessinger in endeavoring to stop him, frightened his own, causing it to fall heavily to the ground upon Mr. P., injuring him on the head and side. He was carried to the house and cared for, and although delirious on Saturday night, and confined since to his bed, is not fatally injured. The boy was not hurt.

The Hollidaysburg Register says that a mysterious individual has taken up his abode in a cave on the Cove Mountain. He is about six feet eleven inches high, of sandy complexion, sandy hair and whiskers, both of which he allows to grow an unusual length. Everything connected with his past life is shrouded in the deepest mystery, and in fact very little is known of his singular habits since his abode here. He observes almost perpetual silence, only speaking when he comes to town to buy his tobacco and groceries, which he always purchases at the cheap Gaysport grocery. The gentleman with whom he trades informs us that he never comes in the day time, selecting the gloomy mantle of night. He answers no questions, and never allows the eye of mortal to rest upon his face, and always asks for what he wants with his back turned toward the persons whom he addresses.

- GOLDEN FOUNTAIN PEN.—Something new and novel. Be sure and read the advertisement in our paper headed, "Greatest Invention of the Age." We believe the Golden Fountain Pen is unsurpassed. A good pen is a necessity to every man, woman and child. Agents, here is a chance to make money in introducing a good and saleable article. jan25:1y

MRS. FAST has this week marked down her hosiery, gloves, fans, collars, ribbons, &c.

The Gettysburg Star and Sentinel says: On Saturday afternoon last, Miss Sarah Thompson, daughter of the late Robert Thompson, of Cumberland township, met with her death under distressing circumstances. She had driven to town in the morning to attend religious services in the Methodist Episcopal Church. After church she started home, driving a quiet and trusty horse, which had been in the possession of the family for years. Late in the afternoon she was found dead on the road about one mile from her residence. Everything indicated that the horse had taken fright and ran off, throwing Miss Thompson from the carriage, which was broken to pieces, the parts being scattered along the road for several hundred yards.—Miss Thompson had evidently not been killed at once. Her body was found along the roadside, by the fence, between two rocks, lying on her face. There were no indications of serious external injury. Her left hand was bruised and wrapped in her veil. The deceased, after the accident, had managed to get over to the rocks to sit down and adjust her injured wrist, when she probably fainted and falling on her face was smothered.

SEWING MACHINES are all the talk over town, and many ladies debate about the merits of different makes, just like politics during election times. But it is really wonderful what a host of of friends the Singers have in this town. Whoever gets one of this make is highly pleased with them, and can recommend them with clear conscience to their friends. Whoever intends purchasing a machine could not fail to inspect them at the agency of M. Schiff, Broadway, New Brighton.

Pic-nics.—The rain on Tuesday of last week sadly interfered with the festivities at Linwood Grove, near Economy, where a large number were congregated upon the grounds, and the scarcity of shelter gave them a good drenching.

On Friday last at Lacock's Grove, the Masonic Fraternity held a pic nic and the day being propitious an immense crowd was in attendance. The festivities were kept up until a late hour, and everything passed off to the satisfaction of all present.

EDITOR BEAVER ARGUS.—Dear Sir:—In looking over the ARGUS of the 14th instant, I saw an article clipped from the Chardon Democrat with respect to relationship existing between four persons.

I think that we can beat that in old Hanover township, Beaver county, Pa., where we have or had not long ago six persons all living on the same farm, in connection with the same church, belonging to first-class families, and by legal marriage the following relationship: 2 husbands, 2 brothers-in-law, 2 wives, 2 sisters, 2 fathers and 2 sons; 1 stepson, 1 grandson, 2 mothers, daughter-in-law, father-in-law, sister-in-law, 1 grand father, 1 step grand mother, 2 half brothers, 2 aunts, 2 uncles, 2 cousins, 1 half sister, 1 half uncle. P. H.

Something for School Directors and Teachers.—If our best teachers and most prominent educators unite in the opinion that, to teach geography with success and efficiency, Wall Maps are essential; and that at least one year's instruction should be given, to beginners, exclusively from maps before text books are placed in their hands. No school should be without a set of good maps. No good teacher will teach without them, if possible to persuade Directors to buy maps.

G. I. Eberhart, of New Brighton can furnish the best maps now published, at the lowest rates at which they can be purchased of any firm in the United States. je21.3t

Clerk Missing.—From the Cincinnati Commercial we learn that the owners of the Leonidas are just now exercised over the mysterious disappearance of William McAllister, first clerk of that steamer. On Saturday last he wrote a letter from Louisville, stating that he would leave for Cincinnati the next day. As he did not arrive Monday morning, Capt. Maratta apprehensively telegraphed to Mr. J. C. Mcmurray, in Louisville, to learn the reason of the delay, and received a reply to the effect that the gentleman had left that evening on the United States. He failed to put in an appearance on Tuesday, and inquiry being made on the States, it was shown that he had not come up on that steamer at all. Captain Maratta has every confidence in his clerk, who has been in his employ for some time, and entertains serious fears lest Mr. McAllister has been foully dealt with, as it was known that he had a considerable sum of money in his possession.

Mr. McAllister is a resident of this place, and we trust for his family's sake, these causes of apprehension may prove fallacious.

KEYSTONE SEWING MACHINE.—In another column of to-day's paper will be found the advertisement of the Keystone Sewing Machine, the western agency of which is located at No. 94 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh. This machine is the latest and best offered to the public. Agents wanted everywhere.

The first two cases under the Mercer county Liquor Law, were tried before Esq. Pardoe, at Pardoe station, Mercer Co., on Tuesday, 20th inst., the defendants being Samuel Blackmore and Robert Jones. They were indicted for selling liquor without license, were tried by a jury of six, found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $100 each, to Findley tp., and the cost of prosecution.

An Enjoyable Affair.—Those who attended the festival given by the ladies of the Working Society of the M. E. Church of Beaver last week, had an enjoyable time of it. A large crowd of "brave men and fair women" were in attendance, and prrticipated in the "exercises." The snug sum of about $65.00 was realized.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.—In consequence of the present excited state of the wool market, woolen goods in the east are rapidly advancing in price. We would suggest to our friends in the country that it would be wise to save a part of their wool this season, and have it made into such blankets, stocking yarn, cassimeres, flannels, &c., as they may need for home use. The place to get such work done cheaply and satisfactorily, is at the factory of Mr. Joseph Pontefract, Fallston, Beaver county, Pa. Any wool left with him will receive every attention. [je21-4w.

The Indiana Messenger says: One of the best farmers in the northern part of the county hands us the following report: "Wheat and rye will be a fair crop; corn, rather promising; oats will probably be a failure; fruit, in general, ditto."

Mr. Johnathan Altman, near seventy years of age, was attacked by a highwayman in Kittanning township, Armstrong county, on the evening of the 5th inst. The young scoundrel struck his victim and demanded his watch, but being resisted Mr. A. finally escaped.

Township Clerks Take Notice.—By a law passed at the last session of the Legislature, township clerks are required within sixty days after the annual election to make out and publish a full and complete statement of the financial condition of such township, under a penalty of $50.

Decoration Day was appropriately observed in Industry township, this county, by the citizens turning out and visiting Todd's Grave Yard, where a number of deceased soldiers are buried. After the ceremony of strewing their graves with flowers was concluded, a short address was delivered by Benjamin Todd, esq., and several pieces of music were sung by the ladies who participated in the exercises.

YO-CEMETERIES.—A lady was looking at the beautiful chromo of the "Birthplace of Whittier," when a bystander remarked that it was painted by Thomas Hill. "Oh, yes," replied she, "I think he must be a great artist, he painted the 'Yo-Cemeteries.'" And in speaking of great artists we call to mind the fact that S. & J. Snellenburg are great artists. Hill paints the man, money makes the man, and Snellenburgs clothe the man. Their place of business is on Broadway, New Brighton.

Judges' Pay Increased.—The President Judges throughout the State will receive a salary of $5,000 for the ensuing year, commencing the 1st day of June. The associate judges will receive in lieu of the salary now allowed by law five dollars for every day they may be employed in the discharge of their official duties. The salary of no associate judge shall be less than three hundred dollars. The judges of the Supreme Court have had their salaries raised to $7,000 a year.

Sent to the Penitentiary.—Robert Preston, was convicted last week in Greene county of the murder of Valentine Craft. The murder was committed on the 9th of January, 1871. He was sentenced to ten years imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary, to where he has already been taken.

Beaver Seminary and Musical Institute.—We have received the Sixteenth Annual Catalogue of the Beaver Seminary and Musical Ingitute for the session of 1870–71. In it we find that the total number of pupils during the session numbered 188, of which 130 were ladies and 58 gentlemen. The session closes the present week. The following young ladies get their diplomas this session: Leora S. Allison, Ella S. Beacom, Laura S. Harrah, Clara L. Hunter, Linnie Richardson, Emma J. Roberts.

Another Raid on the County Treasury.—On Tuesday night of last week another raid was made on the County Treasury. This time an entrance was effected through one of the windows in front of the office. Once in the room the burglars succeeded, by the use of chisels in opening the door of the fire-proof safe, but when they came to try their hands on the burglar proof safe—the one in which the money is kept—they failed to make "the landing" and left. The tools used on the occasion were taken from the shops of Messrs. Reisinger and Reed of this place and were left in the Treasurer's office, by the burglars. They made a complete "water-haul," and had they succeeded in opening the safe in which the funds are usually kept, they would have made but little in the operation, as there was not over $250.00 in it at the time. The general belief is that the persons who attempted this robbery, are the same persons, or a part of them at least, who fleeced the treasury in the fall of 1869.

NOTWITHSTANDING the rise in Wool and Woolen Goods, R. Steinfeld is selling his stock in ready made Clothing as cheap as before the War. He is also making up to order pants and boys' clothing at figures to suit every one, at his store, Broadway, New Brighton.

Epidemics.—We are approaching the season when epidemics may be expected. Lime and water are great purifiers, and cannot be too freely employed as sanitary agents. The purity of the water employed for domestic consumption is a matter of the highest public importance; quite as important as a full supply of the indispensable element. It is now well established that dysentery, typhoid fever, cholera and other fatal diseases, are caused by animal and vegetable substances dissolved in the water; therefore all supplies of water for drinking, culinary or bathing purposes, should be carefully inspected. One point to be borne in mind is, that we may get accustomed to drinking impure water and not know it, unless other senses than taste are consulted.

Insanity, A Life-Insurance Suit.—In a life-insurance suit from Kansas, brought by the relatives of a man who had committed suicide, and in which the ground was taken that as the act was committed in a fit of insanity, the company was liable for the amount of the policy, Justice Miller of the United States Court charged that there was no presumption in law, prima facie or otherwise, that self-destruction was evidence of insanity. The act of a suicide must be shown to be the result of insanity. The party must have been moved to the act by an impulse that he could not resist. If such a state of mind existed, the company must be held liable; but if the party, in the exercises of his ordinary faculties had become angry, excited or distressed, so that he preferred death to life, the act of suicide was his own, and the company could not be held liable. A verdict was rendered against the company.

The M'Kean Miner says: On the first instant Charles C. Stanchfield, aged about fourteen years, and Johnny Barkas, aged about ten, went to the Allegheny River, near the Knapp bark landing, for the purpose of going in swimming. One of them proposed to carry the other across the river on his back, and the elder boy undertook to do so, but after getting near the middle of the stream, it is supposed that Johnny became frightened and let go and began to sink, when his companion caught him by the hair, and while trying to save him they both sank three or four times, struggling desperately for life and calling loudly for help. There being no one near enough to aid them, they sank to the bottom and were found, by raking and diving, within an hour and a quarter from that time.

Fourth of July Celebration.—The soldiers' fourth of July re-union in New Castle promises to be a grand affair. The townships of the county are making extensive preparations, and the people of our city are already busily engaged in arranging the meeting programme. Provisions are to be collected by donation, to be sold at Pearson's Grove, where the exercises will take place. A small entrance fee will be charged at the gate. The proceeds are to be applied to the monument fund. Generals Meade and Burnside are to be here, and a glorious time is anticipated. Let the people from all parts of the country gather in on that day, and let us have a genuine George Washington Fourth of July jollification.—Gazette and Democrat.

Death of Archibald Robertson, Esq.—Hon. Archibald Robertson of Beaver Falls, this county died on Monday, June 19th, at his residence in that place. Mr. Robertson represented this district in the State Senate some eighteen or twenty years ago, and during the Presidency of Andrew Johnson held the office of Revenue Collector for the 24th District. Mr. R.'s health for several months back has been poor, and his death last week did not come unexpected to himself or friends. His age was about sixty-seven years.

BEAVER VALLEY ITEMS.

—Rev. J. C. Wilson preached the Baccalaureate sermon of the New Brighton Ladies' Seminary on Sunday. A grand concert came off on Monday evening. Public examinations of classes took place yesterday (Tuesday.) Commencement exercises come off to-day (Wednesday.)

—The Beaver County Press says that services were to be held on last Sunday by several pastors of New Brighton in the grove near the upper bridge, "because it is pleasant to worship God in His own first temples," and partly to catch those who, on Sunday afternoons, visit the "Ainm Rooks."

—The Fair and Festival of the Presbyterian Church of New Brighton closed on Saturday night of week before last. They netted about $750.

—Messrs. T. B. White & Co., of New Brighton, have been awarded the contract for constructing an Iron Bridge over French Creek, Meadville, Pa. We are glad to hear that Beaver county mechanics and builders are appreciated abroad. The work will be completed creditably by the enterprising gentlemen who have undertaken it. The job is taken at $21,000.

—The Grand Parade of the butchers of New Brighton, Fallston and Beaver Falls, comes off next Friday. Extensive preparations are making to exhibit the great Beef.

—John B. Williams has opened a Barber Shop, at the corner of Bridge street and the Diamond, New Brighton. John is an experienced barber.

Canine Intelligence.—The Portland (Me.) Press says: "The following story, strange as it may appear, is vouched by several witnesses whose testimony is unimpeachable. A short time ago a female Newfoundland dog was in the habit of coming to the house of a lady in this city who would throw to it pieces of cold meat, which the dog would eat, and, having satisfied its hunger, go away again. So confirmed did this habit become, that at a certain hour daily the lady would expect the dog, and the animal would put in an appearance. A few days ago, before feeding her, the lady said to her, 'Why don't you bring me one of your puppies?' repeating the question as she stood at the window, the dog listening all the while with an expression of intelligence, as if it understood every word the lady said. The next day, to the lady's astonishment, at the usual hour, the dog returned, and, lo and behold! was accompanied by a little puppy. The lady fed both dogs, and then took up the puppy into the window, when the old dog scampered off and did not return for three days. At the end of that time the dog again appeared, when after feeding it, the lady said, 'Next time bring all your puppies, I want to see them!' and yesterday morning, safe enough, the dog returned accompanied by three Newfoundland pups. Several of the neighbors saw the whole transaction, and declared that they considered this one of the most wonderful proofs of the sagacity of the dog they have ever known. Where the dog came from and to whom it belongs is not known, but we have the name of the lady and also of those who were eye-witnesses to the occurrences as narrated by us."

Personal.—Mr. Hays, of the Carroll county, Ohio, Chronicle, was in Beaver last week, on a visit to some relatives residing here. He represents his paper in quite a flourishing condition.

—Rev. A. M. Jelly, now of Washington, New Jersey, but formerly of Beaver, visited our town last week, and spent a few days talking to his old friends. Mr. J., looks hearty and we were gratified to learn that he is in charge of one of the largest and most flourishing Presbyterian Churches in New Jersey.

—Capt. E. M. Crail, of Newport, Ky., a native of this county, and for several years a citizen of Beaver, was also in town on a visit a few days ago. Capt. C., is in the enjoyment of good health, seems to be well pleased with himself and everybody else, attends to his own business promptly, reads the ARGUS regularly and as a matter of course is prosperous and highly esteemed by all who know him.

—Cadet Edward Beacom of this place, who has been a pupil at the West Point Military Academy for some time past, reached home on a visit, a day or two ago. He has been absent for about two years. His furlough, we believe, covers two months of time. He has the reputation of being a close student and of having made rapid progress in his studies.

—Prof. R. T. Taylor, of the Beaver Female Seminary and Musical Institute, and well known in this vicinity as a successful educator, has had the degree of D. D. conferred upon him by the Allegheny College, at Meadville, Pa.

—Lieut. Samuel T. Hamilton of the 2d U. S. Cavalry, who has, with his regiment, been stationed at Fort Ellis, Montana, for some time past, is on a short visit to his home in Beaver, at present. Judging from his appearance, life on the plains seems to agree with him.

Regular monthly meeting Young Men's Christian Association, at their rooms, Monday evening, July 4th, at 8 o'clock.

A Terrific Storm.—A storm of considerable violence passed over this place on last Friday evening. The fall of rain did considerable damage along the small streams north and west of us. The Two Mile Run was never known to be higher. The storm seems to have been much more violent south and east of this place. We copy the following particulars touching it from Monday's Pittsburgh Commercial:

A storm of more than usual severity visited this city between eight and nine o'clock Friday night, accompanied by terific thunder and lightning, but as far as we have been able to ascertain there was but little if any damage done within the city limits. It appears that a sort of hurricane prevailed a few miles to the southwest of the city, and that it was merely the northern wing of the storm which reached us.

In Chartiers Valley the storm was terific, the very elements appearing to be at war. The vivid flashes of lightning were blinding, and were accompanied by peals of deafening thunder, while the wind blew a perfect hurricane, and the rain fell in torrents and was weighed with hail. The storm passed from the north to the south, commencing at the mouth of Chartiers creek it passed up the entire length of the valley, destroying vegetation, uprooting trees and levelling buildings along its course.

The farm of ex-Sheriff Patterson, in Robinson township, suffered severely. His hay house and nearly all his outbuildings were blown down, and twenty trees of his orchard uprooted. His outbuildings were all demolished, and seventeen trees in his orchard were blown over. His fences are leveled, but fortunately his stable containing valuable horses, was not wrecked.

The Presbyterian Church, known as Cloakey's, in Scott township, was utterly demolished. It was situated about five miles from the city.

In the neighborhood of Palmersville, in Robinson township, the farm of Mr. John Edmundson was severely visited; his barn was blown down, a horse killed and other severe damage inflicted. The farm of James Edmundson was also severely dealt with. Here, also a barn was blown down and a large number of hives of bees blown away. Mr. Samuel Scott, near by, had his fences demolished and five hundred dozen of barley in shock, blown entirely out of the field.

The Chartiers, or Baldwin bridge, over the creek, was blown to a skeleton, all the boards being blown away and only the frame work left.

On the farm belonging to the estate of Captain Craft, deceased, in Robinson tp. near Broad Head station, the barn and fences were demolished.

S. B. Davis, proprietor of a flouring mill in Robinson tp., had a large wagon blown into the creek. The mill was partially flooded and sustained considerable damage.

At Mt. Lebanon, the St. Clair United Presbyterian church was nearly ruined. The entire roof was blown off, and the west gable blown entirely in. The crops in the vicinity were very greatly damaged. In consequence of the damage done to this church, the congregation worshipped in the school house yesterday.

Other and more serious damage may have been and doubtless was done, but as far as we have been able to ascertain, there has been no loss of life.

Along the Monongahela river the storm was very severe, but there were no serious results, so far as can be learned.

New style aprons very cheap, at Mrs. Fast's.

On Saturday evening about 11 o'clock fire was discovered in the store room of Mr. Maharg, on the Plank road, Butler county. Mr. J. Maharg was awakened by a light shining in his bed room, in a dwelling house near by. The store room was so far enveloped in flames that it was impossible to save anything. Only a favorable wind and good efforts saved the dwelling house. The total loss will be about twenty-five hundred dollars, with only nine hundred dollars insurance in the Butler County Mutual. The fire was likely the work of an incendiary as tar and matches were both known to be in the store.

The papers of the Post Office were also consumed.

NOT CONSUMPTION.—We have on our books of Record the name, residence, date, disease and prescription of every case treated by us during the last twenty years. In those books are contained the names of over sixty thousand persons and more than two hundred thousand prescriptions. In this last number of cases, every kind and variety of diseases have fallen under our observation, and every form of treatment has been fully tested.

In Consumption and "Lung Diseases," we have had ample opportunity to test not only every kind of treatment, but every kind of medicine.

We know that there are many cases of disease that so nearly resemble consumption, but which is not without a very careful diagnosis, serious mistakes might be made, which would lead to very prejudicial results in the treatment. It is the duty of every physician to ascertain as nearly as possible the precise nature of every malady before prescribing. "No more certain sign is offered in disease than is found in the urinary secretion," says Simon. And in this disease, we are especially favored with indications in the urine which enables us to determine not only the facts relative to the true nature thereof, but to measure tolerably correctly the extent of the same.

We have thus detected and determined the extent of hundreds of cases of Consumption, many of which, being incipient only, have been cured by us in a very short time. And whilst we would not hold out inducements or promise a cure, in the "last stage" of this dreadful malady, we would just say, that we have cured many cases that so nearly resembled Consumption, that it was impossible to determine the fact by any other means than by examination of the urinary secretion.

Among these we might mention Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Heart Disease, Female Weakness, &c., &c.

These diseases oftimes much resemble Consumption in many particulars. They may come on with cough and expectoration of blood and mucus, pain in the breast and sides, heats and chills, followed by weakness, night sweats, &c. These symptoms are taken for Consumption, and the patient is informed that the case is a "hopeless one," when perhaps it was yet as curable as nine-tenths of our most common diseases, and when some prompt and efficacious remedy administered for the real disease would dispel it in a very short time.

We have cured many cases of this kind even after they had been abandoned as hopelessly consumpted by their relatives as well as their physician. Whilst there is life there is hope in such cases.

The Internal Revenue Bureau will change all the stamps on or about August 1st, substituting two kinds, one called sensitive stamps, so that the use of acid to remove cancelling marks, will destroy them beyond use. The other to be printed in such colors as to prevent imitation by means of photography. Much time and attention have been bestowed on this subject, and it is supposed the precaution against fraud in the reissue of stamps will save a large sum of money to the Government.

The Grand Concert, by the pupils of Prof. de Ham of the Beaver Ladies' Seminary, came off at the U. P. Church, on Monday evening. It was an occasion over which this community may well feel proud, and the Principal of the Seminary, as well as his Professor of music, feel that their meritorious efforts are deservedly appreciated. We have never, in all our varied experience, witnessed a concert given by the students of a Seminary, where the entire class, without a single exception, performed so accurately as did those on this occasion This is the general verdict rendered by the intelligent and critical audience present.

It would seem invidious to point to specific instances of superior talent, where all done so well; but we cannot forbear mentioning the rendering of Talexy's "Etude Mazurka," by Miss Della Caughey, of Beaver—executed in a masterly manner throughout, without once raising her eyes to the copy.—"Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream," as played by Miss Flora Wilson, of Pittsburgh, in a like superior style; as was the "Cascade of Rubies," by Miss Sadie Wilson, of Beaver. "The Brightest Eyes," by Miss Amelia A. Poe, of Georgetown, Pa., (a young sole,) was well rendered. Miss Poe has a voice of great compass, sweet and clear as a mocking bird. Miss Eakin, of Pittsburgh, was introduced and played "Fisher's Hornpipe," with variations. We understood she is the daughter of Assistant Quarter Master General Eakin of the United States Army. Of Professor de Ham's performance it is only necessary to say, he is a master. The Grand Overture to Semiramide, by the class, was a grand finale to the entertainment.

The following are the names of those who graduate to-day (Wednesday):

Miss Amelia A. Poe, Georgetown, Pa.; Miss Georgiana Eberhart, New Brighton, Pa.; Miss Nannie B. Imbrie, Beaver, Pa.; Miss Mary S. Lea, Allegheny City, Pa.; Miss Lora Belle Shields, Beaver, Pa. B.

The Harvest.—Some of our farmers began to cut wheat the latter part of last week, and on last Monday a general "attack" on wheat and rye was begun.

they swelled up as the flood-tide that bore Luther and Calvin to the great work. Luther ignited the latent spark that illumined the world. An unscrupulous Dominican friar made him revolt against the power from which he accepted Holy Orders. The first step once taken, he earnestly sought the truth, and as he advanced he was followed by many who had long aided to influence, and had long felt the influence of, the Reformation. He little dreamed of the slumbering unrest that was beneath the serene surface of the power of the Church. When he boldly erected the standard of regeneration, the quickened life of the people made his journey to Worms a triumphal ovation, and he entered the city chanting the song of the disenthralled, for the Reformation had its Marseillaise. Nor has the lapse of time, nor the rapid strides of enlightened progress, changed the chief agency of Christian advancement. The Church has great teachers—men whose face is world-wide, and many stars may be worn in their crowns. And we have books, and journals, and periodicals, and tracts, which tell at every door of the way of redemption; but above all and successful over all, is the every-day Christian life that is silently but surely restraining evil, and that tells to all around it in gentle, ceaseless whispers that the good only are happy, hopeful and great.

I would not seek to dim the lustre that brightens the memory of the homes which are interwoven with the world's great events. Not one leaf should be plucked from their laurels. They are as bright beacons along the dark ways of our journey, and they are standards which invite emulation. The higher you place your standard, the higher will be the measure of your attainment. You may fall far short of the realization of your dreams, but no earnest efforts in the right direction can be wholly lost. Still behind you, and far off yet behind others, will be struggling mortals to take fresh inspiration by what you, in your failure have won. But I would remind you of the source, the currents, the tides, and the havens of the troubled waters on which you are about to embark. The broad ocean of life is made up of individual lives, and each has its labor to perform in rearing the angry waves of the tempest, or in settling the calm surface of the world's repose. I watched a clear, cool bubbling spring as it rose on the summit of the rocky range, and its little streamlet hurrying off in fretful murmurs to the eastern sea. An ox would drain its overflow, yet it is the source of the Father of Waters. It dashes down the rude declivities and foams through the narrow canons, joined in every ravine by its tributaries, until it washes the precious metals from their long hiding places, and quenches the thirst of the luxuriant mountain valleys. Around it on every side, through the chaos of bald cliffs and green ranges, come many streams of every character and temperament. Hot geysers are flung into the air, and from the pierced rocks the cold, crystal waters flow. Strange minerals give the hues of the chameleon to some, and others encrust their fountains with monuments created by the wealth they hold in solution. Here are boiling currents, and there are tepid wells, and yonder are silver lakes; but all, all course onward and are lost in the great river, which in turn is lost in the vast ocean. Did I say lost?—let me recall it. Not one drop of all their varied qualities goes for nought. Though all are mingled in one temperament, and all become alike in their elements, yet each has its office in moulding the qualities of the river and the ocean. Nor are these little sources limited to the task of shaping the character of the great streams into which they flow. Each by itself has some good work to do. They have cooled the lips of peoples and of creatures which we know not of. They have gathered the mountain riches, in single sands, during forgotten ages, to be ripe for the necessities of civilization. They have opened new fields for science, or made paths plain where the learned have stumbled. They have swept the scant fertility of the rugged hills, and made broad meadows for man to develope into beauty and plenty. Each babbling rivulet, and each particle of itself, have never been idle nor have they toiled in vain. They may have been sent to flood the plains, or to fill the mountain gorges. Thence they may have been diffused as the mists of the morning, or drunk in by the insatiate earth. But they have ever returned and ever will. They may rise and fall in some far distant clime, to revive the drooping plant or glitter on the fragrant flower; or they may come in the scalding tear, or in the tinted rainbow, or in the gentle dews, or in the destruction of the tempest.

What I would most pointedly illustrate is the value and influence and duty of each individual every-day life. But few even of the most learned can have their names inscribed on what we call the "scroll of fame;" but that rare attainment is not the true measure of a great life. I speak of what all classes are most prone to forget, and what the ambitious and cultivated youth, more than others, is likely to overlook. You turn to the monuments of greatness as preserved in the history of human efforts; but you are unmindful that the sources of all memorable events, and of all distinguished benefactors, are the infinite individual beings who make up the family of mankind. I would not have you close your eyes to the fact, that the world had its Cæsars and Napoleons, its Shakspeares and Miltons, its Washingtons and Jacksons, its Clays and Calhouns, its Lincolns and Douglasses. Well-directed ambition animates to noble deeds and adorns a noble life; but the faithful aim should be to make one pure, unselfish, earnest every-day existence. The value of such a life is incalculable. It may not be heralded to the world, or be notable in history, but it is a perpetual well-spring of blessings to its author, and to all within the range of its influence, and the end of its good offices cannot be measured. All see the pure fountain, drink of its refreshing waters, and all of bounty and beauty around it mutely but eloquently testify to the grandeur of its attributes. The brilliant meteor flashes, expires, and is forgotten. The comet comes to note the revolutions of the heavenly bodies, and passes away. But the goddess of night, and her countless family of merry stars, return with the decline of day and perform their ceaseless mission. Many are unnoticed; millions are unknown; but they all join in lifting the curtain of darkness and are as priceless diamonds of beauty and endless sources of beneficence.

Look well to the single, individual life, and guard with jealous care against the ambition that would make you the prey of a selfish struggle for mere distinction among men. It is a slow, deadly poison to the integrity of youth. It dwarfs and paralyzes mature manhood. It chills all the nobler aspirations of our nature. It hastens a vexed life to withered and untimely senility. To such the world is a vast, dreary solitude, save as it ministers to one unholy, unsatisfying purpose. Their efforts are like foot-prints in the shifting sands of the desert—the simoon sweeps over them and they are effaced forever. All the hopes and aims of an immortal being are staked upon an attainment which, if won, is but a hollow, fleeting bauble, and its garlands turn to burning ashes when they are grasped. A crowded throng has run this thorny, cheerless course, and innumerable throngs will persist in clouding and perverting bright lives, only to toil in the end how their days were "worse than basely lost."

Soon you will go hence, fitted for the better efforts of mankind, and strong in the vigor of youth and hope. Go back to the great school whose portals are never closed, whose admonitions are never voiceless, and whose honors are rich in lustre, and fade not when the sober evening-time shall bid you set your house in order. Learn that he is ever a stranger in the land who does not live for others, and that—

"He most lives,
Who thinks the most, feels the noblest, acts the best."

The whole family of man is mingled in a mass of mutual teachers and pupils, and each individual life should take its part in advancing and elevating the human race. Wherever you may be, or however conditioned, the field will be boundless. Every passing day should save some bruised reed, or solace some bitter sorrow, or halt some wayward step, or inspire some wise resolve. This is the lesson of the pure, the hopeful, the earnest every-day life. It is always being taught, and always teaching, always polishing some lustrous gem, to note that it leaves the world better than it was found. Its course of study is never finished; its work is never done. It makes the peaceful home, whose door is not passed without a welcome. It brightens the places of the lowly, and is felt in the temples of pride and selfishness. It is ever sowing, ever reaping, ever garnering, and only in the fullness of time can its jewels be counted. It is the sublimity of well-spent years, in which "Life is Peace."

For the Beaver Argus.

GRANDEUR AND SUBLIMITY.

MR. EDITOR:—Can we conceive of Almighty power? If so, let us travel back to the creation, when God brought order out of chaos; when the morning stars first sang together; and contemplate upon his vast works. The creation of the world with all its original beauty was amazingly grand,—grander the creation of the animal kingdom inhabiting the land and water of the same. But the grandest of all was yet to come; heretofore we have the animal void of soul, now a purely rational and intellectual being,—man made in his Maker's image, just a little lower than the angels, given dominion over all other creation, placed in the beautiful garden of Eden, endowed with the faculty of perceiving, and enjoying its beauty. But alas! he, beguiled by the Serpent, not satisfied with his present knowledge, reached forth, plucked the fruit God in his wisdom saw fit to forbid him, thus incurred divine wrath and was obliged to leave his paradisical home. Now since he had fallen from his high and holy state he must be forever doomed to perpetual darkness, without a star of hope to illumine his sky. But God in his tender compassion pitied him in this his forlorn condition, and gave his only begotten son to suffer and die for him, that through him he might live. Oh! one of the grandest themes that was ever sung by angels. Look at his carreer upon Earth, the blending of his two natures,—God and man,—his preaching and teachings; his acts of kindness, deeds of mercy, healing those possessed, restoring the dead, feeding the multitude, the precious promises he gave his followers. Why, his whole life was made up of blessings dispensing them wherever he went. What heart must not melt, when it meditates upon his last agony in the garden? Oh! the bitter cup he drank to its very dregs for one for all. Yes, you and I formed an ingredient in that cup. Then since such a grand redemption purchased not by angels but the King of glory, can be bought without money and without price, let us to the fountain and drink. Let us now, for one moment, reflect upon the gifts of God. He has adorned this mundane sphere of ours with her sublime mountains, majestic rivers, sylvan bowers filled with happy songsters, and the gentle flowers that adorn its path-ways to augment man's happiness. Look at the design. Did not God, making everything so lovely in the beginning, intend to place beings here who could appreciate the same? Consequently we find man possessed with both physical, and metaphysical senses; the last really the essence of the man himself—the source whence he derives all his joy and beauty. What pleasure would there be in viewing a beautiful landscape, a gorgeous sunset with the natural eye unaided by the mental? But there is something more connected with grand and sublime objects, than their mere appearances. There is that hidden beauty that enters into the inner sensibilities and permeates the whole soul. Can any one living in the midst of beauty and grandeur, be so void of internal sense, as not to be excited to emotions of grandeur and sublimity? Why, there are lessons of sublimity to be gathered from the tallest tree that kisses the sky, to the smallest spear of grass that nods in the breeze. Everything leads us to a sublime God. Look at man for whom all this beauty was made. What is he? Physically and intellectually a being fearfully and wonderfully made, with powers of mind susceptible of the greatest culture, he has entered the recesses of science, and brought forth some of the most miraculous results, linked truth to truth, reason to reason, until he has become astonished at his own knowledge. Yes, an intellectual giant we find him, with the pen and sword protecting, raising up Nations, and leveling others to the dust. Then since he is composed of the mortal and immortal, he is made subject to two governments, the civil and moral. The civil justifying or condemning the outward man, the moral or consience approving or condemning the inner. At the first conception of wrong we find this little monitor arising to condemn. Hence there is no excuse for the violating of our moral obligation since this is our guide, when we do right, this little judge approves; when wrong—like the civil—condemns, and punishes accordingly. He is also bound by certain other laws to God and man, enforced by his obligation of love to his Maker, Hence, united by social laws, he exerts either a good or evil influence, he is capable of saving or ruining many, and he need not be a Luther, nor a Malanchthon to do so. True, they were very bright luminaries in the spiritual sky, chosen of God to bring about the Reformation, but since it does not take an age to reform an age we cannot all expect to make such blazing meteors of ourselves. It does not take a Tom. Paine, nor a Voltaire to do evil; true they possessed master minds, and with their "Atheistic Works" ruined hundreds, yet the smallest weakest one, can do a world of evil if they wish, or a world of good. We are our own free moral agents, have our choice, which will we do? If that man cannot be a Spurgeon or a Beecher; if, instead of five, he possesses but two talents, is he excusable in burrying the same? Poor man, he forgets that God had some design in placing him here with those two talents, and intends him to use the same to His own glory. If he cannot thrill assembled churches with his flowing eloquence, he may preach the most successful sermons within narrower limits; may point some one to the Lamb of God by his daily walk and conversation. Look at that little child who leads a wicked and ungodly father to his Savior; a work left alone for it. The minister might never have been able to reach that man's heart; it was only moved through filial affection. Ask, is that a small work? Again what would you think of that woman who sits down with folded hands because she cannot be a Hannah Moore, Mrs. Stowe, the reformer of the 19th century; a Florence Nightingale, alleviating the suffering and distress of French Hospitals; an Anna Dickenson, holding audiences breathless with her bursts of oratory? We cannot all receive crowns of sublunary glory, but the most and insignificant may look up, through the eye of faith, and behold a diadem of unfading glory, dazzling from the throne of a sublime God. Then, if we cannot do great deeds, we cannot do small ones; we can gently take the hand of the erring and lead them back again; probably thus save a soul from ruin, which is producing a grand reform indeed; can visit the sick and needy in their homes; frequent the haunts of misery, and there lift suffering humanity out of degradation and want; for Christ has said, "inasmuch as ye give one of these my little ones a cup of cold water in the name of a decple, ye give it unto me." What if the rill should refuse to flow because it cannot be the mighty ocean; the delicate flower to give off its fragrance because it cannot be the highly colored rose or dashing lily; the little star to shine bright because it cannot be the glowing meteor, forgetting that each have their mission and their admirers? Though we cannot all inscribe our names high upon fame's banner, we should willingly and perfectly fill our respective mission. As the most delicate flower perfumes the air with its fragrance, so the most insignificant of us shed abroad over the moral atmosphere a healthful or destructive influence,—and small deeds sometimes lead to grand result. We should have an aim; work towards it, using our talents and ambition in the promotion of God's glory. We should not erect to ourselves terrestrial monuments to the exclusion of that honor that perishes not, for all earthly blooms but to decay.—Mortal man, and the works of his hands become extinct. Why should he then drive, labor, toil for that which in the obtaining passes away? Why give so much attention to the external while the internal is dying for want of the same? Why neglect that jewel that is to shine through all eternity—to live a while in that strange spell—a name? Why not seek to lay up treasures in the Eden above where no corruption enters to mar their lustre, where shall forever bask in the grandeur and sublimity of Paradise? ANNA M. BEKER,
Mount Pleasant, Pa.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16th, 1871.

THE WEATHER

here is perfectly delightful on account of the cooling effect the recent rains, around us have had upon the atmosphere; no dust in the streets and the promenaders are now making the best use of Pennsylvania Avenue possible.

EX-M. C. SENTENCED TWO YEARS IN THE ALBANY PENITENTIARY.

Never since the trial of John H. Surrat, has there been so much interest manifested by the citizens of the District of Columbia as in the trial, just closed, of C. C. Bowen, ex-M. C. for bigamy.

The speech of the condemned man effected even those who had heretofore been favorable to his conviction, and not a few here of influence and known integrity are willing to sign a petition to the President to pardon him.

His last wife, so devoted has she been, that not one moment during the seven days' trial would she consent to be out of his company; and, yesterday at the closing of Mr. Bowens speech when the Judge passed the sentence of two years upon him in the Albany Penitentiary, she in a high state of frenzy addressed the court, saying, "If he did it, I did it. If he is to be sentenced, sentence me. You have no right to visit punishment upon him alone for what I did also, holding the certificate of divorce obtained from the New York court from his former wife, in her hand."

BOXING EXHIBITION.

Our Legislature adopted a resolution yesterday, calling the Superintendent of the police in the city of Washington to suppress all pugilistic or boxing exhibitions. This is a good step in the right direction, for during and since the war such exhibitions have been frequent.

EX-GOV. PARSONS ON KU-KLUX.

The Ku-Klux Outrage Committee has had before them, ex-Governor Parsons of Alabama. Mr. Parsons is a native of Alabama and it will be remembered that he was Provincial Governor under President Johnson. In brief his opinion is, that the Ku-Klux numbers at least 8000 or 10,000 in his State, and about 12,000 in Georgia; that the legislation of Congress and the President's proclamation, is having their desired effect in causing the leaders of the Ku-Klux bands to pause and consider their situation; and that if the Southern people were made to see that the Government was in earnest in their effort to uphold law and protect its citizens equally well in whatever State they are chanced to be, then the people of the South will respect the Government, and will take hold of the matter themselves. The Government deprecates the necessity of employing military forces but sees no other alternative at the present.

$100 GOLD CERTIFICATES.

Your correspondent has just been shown, by Supt. McCarty of the Printing Division of the Treasury, specimens of the $100 gold certificate (to be used as certificates of deposits in New York city), and stamp for imported cigars.

The $100 gold certificate is printed upon green fibre and water marked U. S. paper with an orange tint, consisting of tablets for numbers. The word "Gold" is at the top and the 100 on the lower half of the note, upon which is imprinted the title in black with the portrait of Benton, or Old Bullion as he was commonly called, on the left end of the Note with the open face figure. The 100 is double disc lathe work.

Of the stamp for imported cigars, the ground work is composed of blue tinted and lathe work, over which is imprinted a title with blank space for date, post inspector's name; and in the centre a portrait of President Grant, which is pronounced by his most intimate friends as the best likeness that has ever been executed.

CENSUS BUREAU.

The work of the Census Office is progressing rapidly. There are 426 clerks employed at present, a large force to be profitably employed, and yet the work is so systematized that there are no drones. Tables are kept, showing every man's work and the Superintendent knows every week the amount of work done by each man.

SKETCH OF THE POLARIS.

The coolest caprice of the season here, is a visit to the steamer Polaris. All her arrangements, outfit, &c., smack strongly of icebergs and a sea of ice and snow. A look into the officers' cabin sufficed to give your correspondent an ague fit. A visit to the cook's gallery, where the heat of the cooking aparatus is utilized (after being employed in the furnace) to melt ice and snow for a supply of water, molified our feelings somewhat until we came in sight of a dog-sledge which had been used by Dr. Kane in his expedition, which caused the fit to return. It is fearfully chilly to contemplate. But I was soon accosted by a representative of Capt. Hall, one Col. Lupton, who warmed me with a fit of laughter. He is a character fit for some future Dickens, and cannot escape immortality save by the grossest neglect. In his address he is a cross between a languishlolling, drawling young lady, and the very humblest type of an Uriah Heep. When these two specialties are combined in a large heavy brown faced, whiskerando, you must imagine the effect; for this is no place nor time to do the picture justice. He certinly was affability amplified, and it is really too bad to write an honest description of this accommodating, bland gentleman, after his being so particular in stating to me the points of the valuable vessel and the objects of the expedition.

The Polaris was originally the "Periwinkle," a propellor built for an ice boat to keep the navigation open between Philadelphia and Camden, N. J. When the war required the vessel, it was purchased by the Government, and being built in the most substantial manner, it was selected for the Polar expedition and the hull was literally filled with bolted timber which is fourteen feet thick at the bow. A nose was added, and the Polaris is really a new vessel, which, like other novels, is "founded on" the Periwinkle.

Everything about this craft is of the most compact description possible. Her power is immense, and yet her machinery occupies but little space. Over her propellor is a well walled with timber, in which, when required by contact with ice, the propellor itself can be unshipped and drawn up out of the way of Arctic breakers. She is schooner rigged of the long and low order, and seems well adapted to running with speed under canvass. She left Washington on Saturday for the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where she will remain for a number of days before starting on her journey to the home of old Boreas.

SKETCH OF SENATOR BOREMAN'S CAREER.

The speech of Senator Boreman, recently noticed in this correspondence, has made him much talked of at the Capitol as a rising man. His private course hitherto will cause the following facts to be read with interest:

A member of the old Virginia legislature and a lawyer of the highest standing before the rebellion, the opening of the war found Senator Boreman occupying the bench of a judical circuit bordering on the Ohio river. He at once stood forward as an energetic leader in constructing the loyal State Government of West Va. He was President of the Convention which formed the new State and was three times elected its executive head. He resigned that responsible office to assume the position of U. S. Senator at the unanimous call of a Republican legislature in 1869.

His administration of the State Government in West Va. brought out and manifested to the minds of all dispassionate men, even in the Democratic party, the highest order of executive ability. Vigilant and indomitable, his evenly balanced mind grasped every proper responsibility which devolved upon him during and at the close of the war. The result was, that, knowing a firm hand was at the helm, despite the turbulence of the times, especially after the return of the soldiers of both armies to the numerous fields of their previous bloody battles, order and security prevailed in that State more generally and more perfectly than in any of the border slave States which have been traversed by the armies of the rebellion.

Thus life, property and peace in that young State were made as secure as in any part of the country, and thus, while everywhere else on the war border disorder, to a greater or less extent, prevailed, the knowledge, tact, firmness and prudence of Governor Boreman's executive career influenced and enforced the quiet and happiness of his people, and made him preeminently the representative man of West Virginia. DOCTOR PIERCE'S
ALT. EXT. OF
Golden Medical Discovery

CURES DISEASES OF THE THROAT, LUNGS, LIVER & BLOOD

In the wonderful medicine to which the attention above pointed for relief, the discoverer has combined in harmony more of Nature's most sovereign curative properties, which it has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for curing the sick, than were ever before combined in one medicine. The evidence of this fact is found in the great variety of most obstinate diseases which it has been found to conquer. In the early stages of Consumption, it has established the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. By its great and thorough blood purifying properties, it cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful purifying and invigorating medicine.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish brown spots or face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternate with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy. For the cure of Habitual Constipation of the bowels it is a never failing remedy, and those who have used it for this purpose are loud in its praise.

The proprietor offers $1000 reward for any medicine that will equal it for the cure of all the diseases for which it is recommended.

Sold by druggists at $1 per bottle. Prepared by R. V. Pierce, M. D., the Proprietor, at his Chemical Laboratory, Buffalo, N. Y.
